'NOTHING TO IT' IS VERDICT ON KOTSUKI CHARGE

"There's nothing to it," was the verbal verdict of Sheriff Rose today, given after several witnesses had been examined with reference to the charge, aired by the Nippon Jiji, a local Japanese newspaper, that S. Kotsuki, a plain clothes policeman, had accepted a bribe of $15 from another Japanese known as Yamamoto.

"Editor Makino of the Japanese newspaper came to me before the story was printed and told me he was going to publish the story," explained Sheriff Rose. "I told him to go ahead and he promised me that he would produce the witnesses on the morning of July 7. McDuffie was to take their testimony, or at least meet the witnesses. The captain waited all morning for Makino and his witnesses, but none showed up.

"Again McDuffie got in touch with Makino, and again Makino promised to bring the witnesses around and again failed to appear. The next day Makino called on McDuffie and told him that Kotsuki was the sole support of a widowed mother and that for that reason, Makino said, he had decided to drop the matter and asked us to do the same. That made me all the more anxious to probe the affair. The paper had attacked Kotsuki's reputation and after doing that had refused to give the man a chance to defend himself.

"So McDuffie and I started out to locate the witnesses ourselves," continued the sheriff. "We got the chauffeur. He didn't know anything except that he collected the $15 for Kotsuki. The other automobile drivers the Japanese paper mentioned did not know a thing about the case. Naito is in jail now. After he had gone with Kotsuki to the hotel where Yamamoto and the woman were staying, Kotsuki saw a revolver protruding from Naito's pocket and he booked Naito on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. I will have Naito brought from the jail and will examine him before I close this case."

The factional fight in Honolulu's "Little Korea," which was brought to the attention of the public a few weeks ago and which is still smoldering pending action on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed in circuit court by officers of the Korean National Association expelled at a special meeting, has been temporarily transferred to San Francisco.

According to local Koreans, a cablegram has reached Honolulu from San Francisco containing the information that Park Yong Man, formerly editor of the Korean National Herald and principal of the Korean military school at Koolau, narrowly escaped death by assassination in the coast city on July 14.

Following the outbreak of the so-called factional fight in Honolulu, Park Yong Man left this city for San Francisco "on a business trip," as he informed his friends. This was only a few days after charges were made that members of one alleged faction had "beaten up" a member of the "Young Park" party.

The cablegram is to the effect that on the afternoon of July 14 in a closed room in a hotel in San Francisco, a Korean named O Chin Kook attempted to assassinate Park, having attacked him without warning with an iron bar.

It is alleged that O Chin Kook demanded that Park sign a paper resigning as vice-president of the Korean National Association. Park signed the paper, says the cablegram, but after he had done so O Chin Kook seized him by the neck and beat him with an iron bar. O Chin Kook fled when persons attempted to enter the room.

The cablegram, which is signed "Koreans," concludes as follows: "Park came back to hotel with bloody body. Left leg badly cut but no danger. We attended him." Kim Yui Sup, said to be secretary of the Korean National Association on Park's side, is said to have received the cablegram.

A large number of Koreans, said to be members of the Korean National Association, are awaiting investigation by the territorial grand jury on charges of rioting in connection with the special election at which the old officers were ousted.

When the doors of New York's newest and most exclusive luncheon club are thrown open in the near future, the many white-clothed tables will be found set with a dinnerware pattern that has stood the test of time and is today what it was one hundred and thirty-six years ago—a classic dinnerware service.

The membership of the Bankers' Club will, needless to say, embrace the heads of the best families of America. Cultured to a degree and, many of them connoisseurs and collectors of ceramics, their aesthetic taste was doubtless taken into consideration in selecting the dishes to be placed before them.

The design is known as the "Mussel" pattern and is the famous blue fluted brought out by the Royal Copenhagen potters in 1779 and successfully manufactured ever since.

Dimond & Co. consider themselves fortunate in securing this ware for Hawaii. Its adoption by the Bankers' Club is the best indorsement of its artistic and wearing qualities.—Adv.

SAY OCCUPANTS OF AUTO WERE INTOXICATED

Investigation of the accident that occurred on May 23 on Liliha street near Hallett lane, when Rapid Transit car No. 19 ran into an automobile, turning it over and injuring two of the passengers within it, a Hawaiian man and woman, was taken up by the public utilities commission this afternoon.

Only two of the witnesses summoned before the commission put in an appearance. These were Conductor Johnson and Motorman MacPherson of the Rapid Transit car. Both stated that the speed of the car at the time of accident was about 10 miles per hour, the automobile turning from a side road on to the track so suddenly that it was impossible to bring the street car to a stop before it struck the automobile. Both witnesses stated that the occupants of the automobile were intoxicated and that it was difficult to secure the names of all of them at the time of the accident.

Gibbs was to have gone to Washington for duty. What further disposition of these officers will be made is not known as yet.

'MATSONIA NIGHT' DINNER DANCE AT HEINIE'S TONIGHT

Manager Heydenreich of Heinie's Tavern in Walkiki announces that tonight (Tuesday) at his popular beach resort will be "Matsonia Night," in honor of the officers and passengers of the steamer Matsonia which arrived from San Francisco this morning. There will be the usual excellent dinner, followed by a dance and cabaret singing by Miss Edith Mellor, whose ability to entertain has been established since her first appearance at the tavern. The management also will make "Matsonia Night" an evening for the special entertainment of officers of the army and navy and their ladies and friends, as well as other members of Honolulu society. The music will be under the direction of William R. Hughes and a splendid quintet club will discourse sweet Hawaiian melodies during the dinner for the dance, which will be an after feature. Everybody who wants to spend an enjoyable evening where the cool sea breezes blow should not fail to attend this "Matsonia Night" dinner-dance at Heinie's Tavern.

It is always a safe place to go if one is in doubt as to where best to go to enjoy a pleasant evening.—Adv.

MORNING ON 'CHANGE

McBryde hit a new high level this morning, changing hands at $8.50 under pressure of buying orders. The previous high price for the issue was $8.25. Waiakua and Pioneer were the other market favorites and were heavily dealt in, both at today's session and between boards. The continued strength of sugar in New York and the reports of probable beet tonnage this year serve to keep the market very strong, despite uncertainty over the tariff.

The boys of the Y. M. C. A. summer school are having a treat these days in chapel talks by noted athletes who are in the city. Yesterday morning the talk was by J. C. Huston, the Stanford rower who was captain of his crew in 1910, and who is now on his way to take up the position of student interpreter to the American ambassador at Peking.
